INSPECTORS TRAINING
By The CE Shop

So, you're ready to begin home inspection training...

Great! Now, it's time to find a school. There are plenty of home inspection schools out there, and they all offer pretty awesome stuff. Each of them has their own specialties, proven techniques, and successful alumni. So, how do you find the one that offers the right stuff?

The best way to find the right school is to find the right school for you.

Ask yourself the questions in this guide – and use our handy chart to help you make the best choice for your learning needs!

Questions to Ask When Comparing Home Inspection Training Programs

1. Is the training program approved to meet my state's requirements for home inspection training?
2. How long has the program been training home inspectors?
3. How many home inspectors have completed the training program?
4. Are the courses taught by experienced instructors who work in home inspection?
5. Does the program help prepare me for inspection report writing?
6. Does the program offer me the opportunity to practice home inspections in the field?
7. Does the program offer business setup and marketing training as part of its curriculum?
8. Does the program provide all the learning materials I'll need, including textbooks, exam study guides, practice exams, and others?
9. Will the program prepare me to pass my state home inspector exam and/or the NHIE?

10. What type of student and graduate support does the program provide?
11. Does the program offer quality inspection reporting software as an added benefit?
12. Can I train to perform other types of specialty inspections as part of your program?
13. Do your specialty inspection courses lead to a certification? (i.e., radon inspection certification, energy audit certification, mold inspection certification)
14. What type of curriculum do you use for your specialty inspection courses? Are they just PDFs from another source?
15. Does the program offer discounts for services I'll need as a new home inspector?
16. Is there a time limit to complete my training?

“If a person is serious about becoming a home inspector and passing their state or national exam, I can't imagine where they could get any better training than with AHIT!”

- Fred, OH

Ask Yourself “How Do I Learn Best?”

There are so many ways to learn, so what clicks for you? A big part of choosing the right school is finding the one that speaks your language.

As always, start by checking your state requirements. They might primarily guide your choice. Find Your State Requirements Here.

Online:

Do you prefer self-paced courses you can work through on your own time? Or maybe online classes you can attend from your couch?

In-Person:

Do new topics ‘click’ best when you’re in a live classroom setting where you can interact with other students and your instructors?

Hands-On:

Do you learn best with your hands, experiencing the job first-hand in the field?

Hybrid:

Do you like to learn in-person and complete coursework online on your own time?

Paying for Your Home Inspection Training

Flexible payment options and discounts can help you cover the cost of training without stress.

Today, the cost of home inspection training runs anywhere between $600 and $2,500. This varies depending on whether you enroll in an online program or in-person courses – as well as what's included with your program. If the price tag for training seems a little steep, keep in mind that certain programs offer payment plans, financing, and discounts you might qualify for. We're proud to be one of the few home inspection schools that does!

“This class covered everything.
I got every penny worth, and then some!”
